B. F. BURTON SUCCEUMBS TO ACCIDENT INJURIES

Victim of Auto-Street Car Crash Suffers Relapse Early Sunday.

B. F. Burton, of 21 Matilda place, died at Grady hospital late Sunday afternoon as the result of injuries received shortly before 7 o'clock Saturday morning when the automobile he was driving crashed into a Walker-West View street car on Gordon road, near the West View cemetery.

Mr. Burton, who is said to have been starting on a hunting trip at the time of the accident, suffered a skull fracture, several broken ribs and body bruises. He was taken immediately to the hospital where his condition was not first regarded as critical. He suffered a relapse Sunday morning, however, and failed rapidly, dying about 36 hours after the accident. The body has been removed to the undertaking establishment of Barclay & Brandon. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

SECOND BAPTIST DEFERS SELECTION OF PASTOR WEEK

Announcement of the selection of a pastor for the Second Baptist church, to have been made at the Sunday morning services, was deferred and probably will be made at the services on next Sunday, March 3, it was stated Sunday night by Colonel F. J. Paxon, head of the committee on the selection. Colonel Paxon explained that the committee had not reached a decision as yet, but expressed the belief that the announcement would be made next Sunday. The vacancy occurred last summer with the resignation of Dr. Carter Helm Jones, who subsequently accepted a charge in New Orleans. Dr. Edwin M. Potat has since been acting as supply pastor.

H. J. BRUCE, SR., FORMER REALTY LEADER, DIES

Well-Known Retired Atlanta Business Man Succumbs at Residence.

H. J. Bruce, Sr., former real estate operator and business man, died Sunday afternoon at his residence, 2831 Peachtree road, in his sixty-fifth year. Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill chapel by Dr. W. H. Major. Burial will be in West View cemetery, and Atlanta lodge, No. 59, F. & A. M., will be in charge of the services at the grave.

A native of Lithonia, Mr. Bruce came to Atlanta as a young man and was for several years connected with the cotton department of the Maddox, Rucker Banking company. He then removed to Macon to become associated with the J. S. Snowden company of that city.

While in Macon he married Miss Leona Hollingsworth. Shortly after his marriage he returned to Atlanta where he established a real estate business and was for many years active in this line of endeavor. He retired from business life a few years ago because of ill health.

He enjoyed a wide friendship here and in Macon and was particularly active in the work of the Masonic lodge. Surviving him are his widow, a son, H. J. Bruce, Jr.; two grandchildren, the Misses Nell and Mary Charlotte Bruce, and a brother, John A. Bruce, of Lithonia.

SCHOOL FINANCE SUBCOMMITTEE TO MEET TUESDAY

Proposed solutions for Atlanta's school revenue problem will be studied at a meeting of the special subcommittee assigned to that task at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The subcommittee consists of Councilman Nelson T. Spratt, chairman; W. W. Gaines and William Van Houten.

The subcommittee will report its findings to the general committee March 5.

Levy of a special school tax to make the board of education an independent revenue-raising body; the placing of schools under the administration of city council and merger of Fulton and DeKalb city and county school systems in several different ways, are solutions proposed. The school tax method of raising funds is favored by a majority of members of the school board, with the creation of a smaller board which would be directly responsible to the voters and would control its own funds from the tax separate from city council control. The merger with county systems has been proposed in several different forms.

TRAFFIC MANAGERS OF SOUTHERN BELL HERE FOR PARLEY

A three-day conference of the general traffic departments of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company opens today at the Biltmore hotel. Traffic managers from the southeastern departments are in attendance.

Federal Agent To Aid DeKalb Residents Make Out Income Tax Records

Decatur, Ga., February 24.—(Special.)—In order to help income tax payers of DeKalb county to file their returns a deputy collector sent out by the state department of internal revenue will be at Lithonia all day Thursday, February 28. This is a free service given by the government. It was made known that all desiring aid in preparing returns will find the deputy assigned to this county at Lithonia on the above date.

RADIO-ING THE AIR WAVES

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

A burlesque on that famous poem. "The Vampire" will be the main feature of the program that Ceco Couriers will broadcast over the Columbia system tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

This well-known piece by Rudyard Kipling will first be given a serious and dramatic interpretation by G. Underhill Macy, after which Henry Burbig, author and humorist, will give one of his famous parodies and burlesque Mr. Macy's recitation.

In addition to this specialty, the Ceco Couriers' orchestra, assisted by male quartet and tenor, will present a half-hour of popular music including selections from such musical comedies as "Who's Who," "Oh Kay," "Angela," and "Rose Marie," and also including Irving Berlin's "My Song of Songs," and an arrangement by Lange of Tchaikovsky's "June."

The intriguing "Dance of the Hours," from Puccini's opera "La Gioconda," is the classical feature in the weekly broadcast by "Voice of Firestone" over WSB and the N. B. C. system, tonight at 7 o'clock. The ballet will be played by the full concert orchestra under the direction of Hugo Mariani.

In addition to the classical feature, the same program contains four different groups of distinct variety in which the orchestra will share honors with Franklin Baur, tenor; Vaughn de Leath, contralto, and the Firestone Chorists.

The first of these, the Chinese group, is featured by Kreiser's "Tambourin Chinois," and the "Chinese Dance" from Tchaikovsky's "Nut-Cracker Suite."

In the next, the popular group, Vaughn de Leath will sing the rhythmic song of the marshlands, "Chloe," and in the home group, Franklin Baur will sing the little known song of Kreiser, "I Am in Love," and the ballad, "Sing Me to Sleep."

The final group is made up of a medley of selections from Noel Coward's Broadway success, "This Year of Grace."

Keith's Georgia.

Paramount's 100 per cent talking picture "The Dummy," which will start the new week at Keith's Georgia today is a sparkling combination of comedy and melodrama, replete with clean humor and tense thrilling action. Ruth Chatterton has the leading feminine role, which she carries off in a fitting manner. Mickey Bennett, 14-year-old child, has the role of the "Dummy" and this lad is said to steal the whole picture. On the stage another one of those big Keith unit shows with a galaxy of beautiful girls, talented artists including a cast of 25 people, will furnish the stage entertainment.

today at Loew's Capitol theater. Jessel is slated to become as popular as Al Jolson, film star of Jessel's old show, according to critics who say the film has played. Accompanying "Lucky Boy" is a bill of Loew vaudeville acts.

Metropolitan.

Player who have "won their spurs" as actors in talking pictures, are listed at the head of the large cast in "Stolen Kisses." Those players are May McAvoy, Claude Gillingwater, William H. Cagney, Edna Murphy and Redd Howe. The story is a fast moving romance of kisses, sweet and stolen. "Imagine My Embarrassment," starring Charlie Chase, a MGM sound comedy, forms the comedy part of the program, and this subject is said to be hilariously funny. Fox Movietone News and a Vitaphone presentation are also on the same program.

Loew's Grand.

Reminiscence of the stirring days of the world war, when airman fought duels to the death above the clouds, "Wings," styled at Loew's Grand theater all this week. Astonishing feats of flying, with realistic battle scenes and a thrilling narrative as the basis of the whole production, "Wings" has become one of the most popular. Current news reels and sound features round out the bill.

Ponce de Leon.

No character in history or legend ever appeared more to the imagination for his prepossession of dashing romantic nerve than Robin Hood, whose exploits in the twelfth century serve to mark that era as one in which the spirit of chivalry reached its zenith. No character in the memory of mankind ever was given such a magnificent opportunity to be impressed permanently so brilliantly. Douglas Fairbanks, the greatest of all actors, has taken the role of Robin Hood, and this lad is said to steal the whole picture. On the stage another one of those big Keith unit shows with a galaxy of beautiful girls, talented artists including a cast of 25 people, will furnish the stage entertainment.

STEPS MADE TO BUY OKEFENOKEE SWAMP

Waycross, Ga., February 24.—(Special.)—Waycross has been notified by United States Senator William J. Harris that he has taken two important steps towards the purchase of the Okefenokee as a national reserve. The first of these is the purchase of several hundred acres of forested lands in Baker county, Florida, by the national forest commission. The United States already owns a forest in this county and the additional acres to be purchased will include the southern tip of the Okefenokee. The second move is the agreement of the forest commission to send its experts and engineers to make a thorough survey of the Okefenokee to determine its value as a national reserve. Senator Harris states that if the Okefenokee is not purchased at one sale he will make a motion each year to have the forest commission purchase an additional portion until all of the Okefenokee has been acquired.

OKEFENOKEE ASSOCIATION TO MEET MARCH 12

A meeting of the Okefenokee association has been called for March 12 at 11 a. m. in the auditorium of the Waycross Y. M. C. A. At this time plans will be discussed for the assistance the association will render in the movement to make the Okefenokee a national reserve. The chamber of commerce is now making out invitations to all members and to a number of prominent Georgians who have expressed their desire to become active workers in the movement.

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO VISIT FLORIDA

Her desire to see her aunt "way down in Florida Sunday led 12-year-old Lucille Roberts to the Terminal station where she made an almost successful attempt to make the gateman let her board a train for the south. It seems that Lucille, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Roberts, of 245 Dean street, has an aunt, Miss Bernice Roberts, in Pensacola, Fla., and the little miss has been wanting to visit her for some time. But her parents haven't seen their way clear to make the trip. Accordingly, the lass Sunday afternoon gathered up her favorite dolls and packed some of her clothes and in some way made her way to the station. She approached the gateman with a story about having had a ticket and having lost it. She therefore tearfully requested that he let her board a train for West Palm Beach, she having, somehow, thought that was her aunt's home. The gateman became suspicious of the young lady, however, so summoned Call Officers Harper and Wright, who rudely disrupted the little girl's traveling plans by returning her forthwith to her worried parents.

COMPILES FIGURES ON IMPROVEMENTS IN SOUTH ATLANTA

Statistics showing expenditures for permanent improvements in south Atlanta and Fulton county over a period of 10 years, together with the names of the representatives in city council and on the board of commissioners at various times over this period, are being compiled by W. W. Matthews, secretary of the South Fulton Civic federation, and will be published and distributed to the membership of the 28 affiliated organizations when complete. "No one should assume that the federation is seeking the political scalp of our officials," explained Dr. W. B. DuVall, president, last night, "but it is generally understood that the percentage of public expenditures on the south side over the past five or ten years has been small and it is our purpose to give the people the statistical facts so they may be more intelligently equipped to vote. The federation does not deal in personal politics but we are inaugurating modern time-clock and cost system methods by which to check those supposed to represent us." Mr. Matthews states that the data will be completed some time before March 20, the proposed date of the special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Captain George Hope of the Fulton county commission.

Rain Predicted For City Today; Rising Mercury

Rain today for the northern portion of Georgia, accompanied by warmer weather, probably will include Atlanta, the national weather bureau in Washington said Sunday night. The rainy weather will extend through Tuesday morning, with cloudy weather finishing out the day. Sunday's temperatures fell only to 38 degrees, 2 points above freezing, and ranged to a high mark of 54 degrees, with no rainfall registered.

Calves Almost Triplets.

Baird, Texas, February 24.—(P)—Calves believed to be twins when they were born on the H. M. George ranch were followed a week later by a third calf. The first two died because of the severe weather. The third, apparently normal, is still alive.

She Quit Taking Soda—Stomach Fine

"I often took soda for relief from gas pains and indigestion. But since taking Adlerika, the gas is all gone and I feel fine."—Mrs. C. Dascher.

Adlerika, a simple glycerin, buckthorn bark, saline compound, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness. Try this simple proof: Take any medicine which acts on lower bowel only—most laxatives do. After your bowels have moved, take Adlerika and in a short time you will be astonished at how much MORE sour, old matter and GAS is brought out!

BRITTEN DEMANDS CONGRESS PROBE PACIFIST BACKERS

Washington, February 24.—(P)—Charging that the National Council for Prevention of War and Frederick J. Libby, its executive secretary, had sent out a final appeal for the defeat of the cruiser program, Chairman Britten of the house naval committee, proposed today that Libby and the council be investigated by the next congress.

The charges were made by the Illinois senator as the naval supply bill, carrying $12,370,000 for the beginning of work on five of the 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier passed Saturday by the senate, was referred to the house for final action. Chairman Britten said that Libby had told his associates to protest against the measure on the ground that shipbuilders were responsible for the program and that it would prevent President-elect Hoover from carrying on other constructive jobs because the treasury would be robbed. "I predict," Britten said, "that the next congress will make a thorough investigation of Libby and his associated organizations with a view to ascertaining the place of residence and character of those people who contribute toward the weakening of the nation. This can be done under the corrupt practices act of 1925."

THOMAS' GROW HAIR

STOP FALLING HAIR AND END ALL DANDRUFF Says Reporter in Newspaper Play

"All efforts to stop my hair-fall proved useless—and I started Thomas' treatment. To some persons excessive hair-fall is merely an annoyance, but to one on the stage the possibility of baldness is looked upon almost hysterically. I sincerely recommend Thomas' scalp treatment to any person troubled with dandruff, falling hair or baldness, because I feel that this treatment can do for me what it has done for me," writes Roger Pryor.

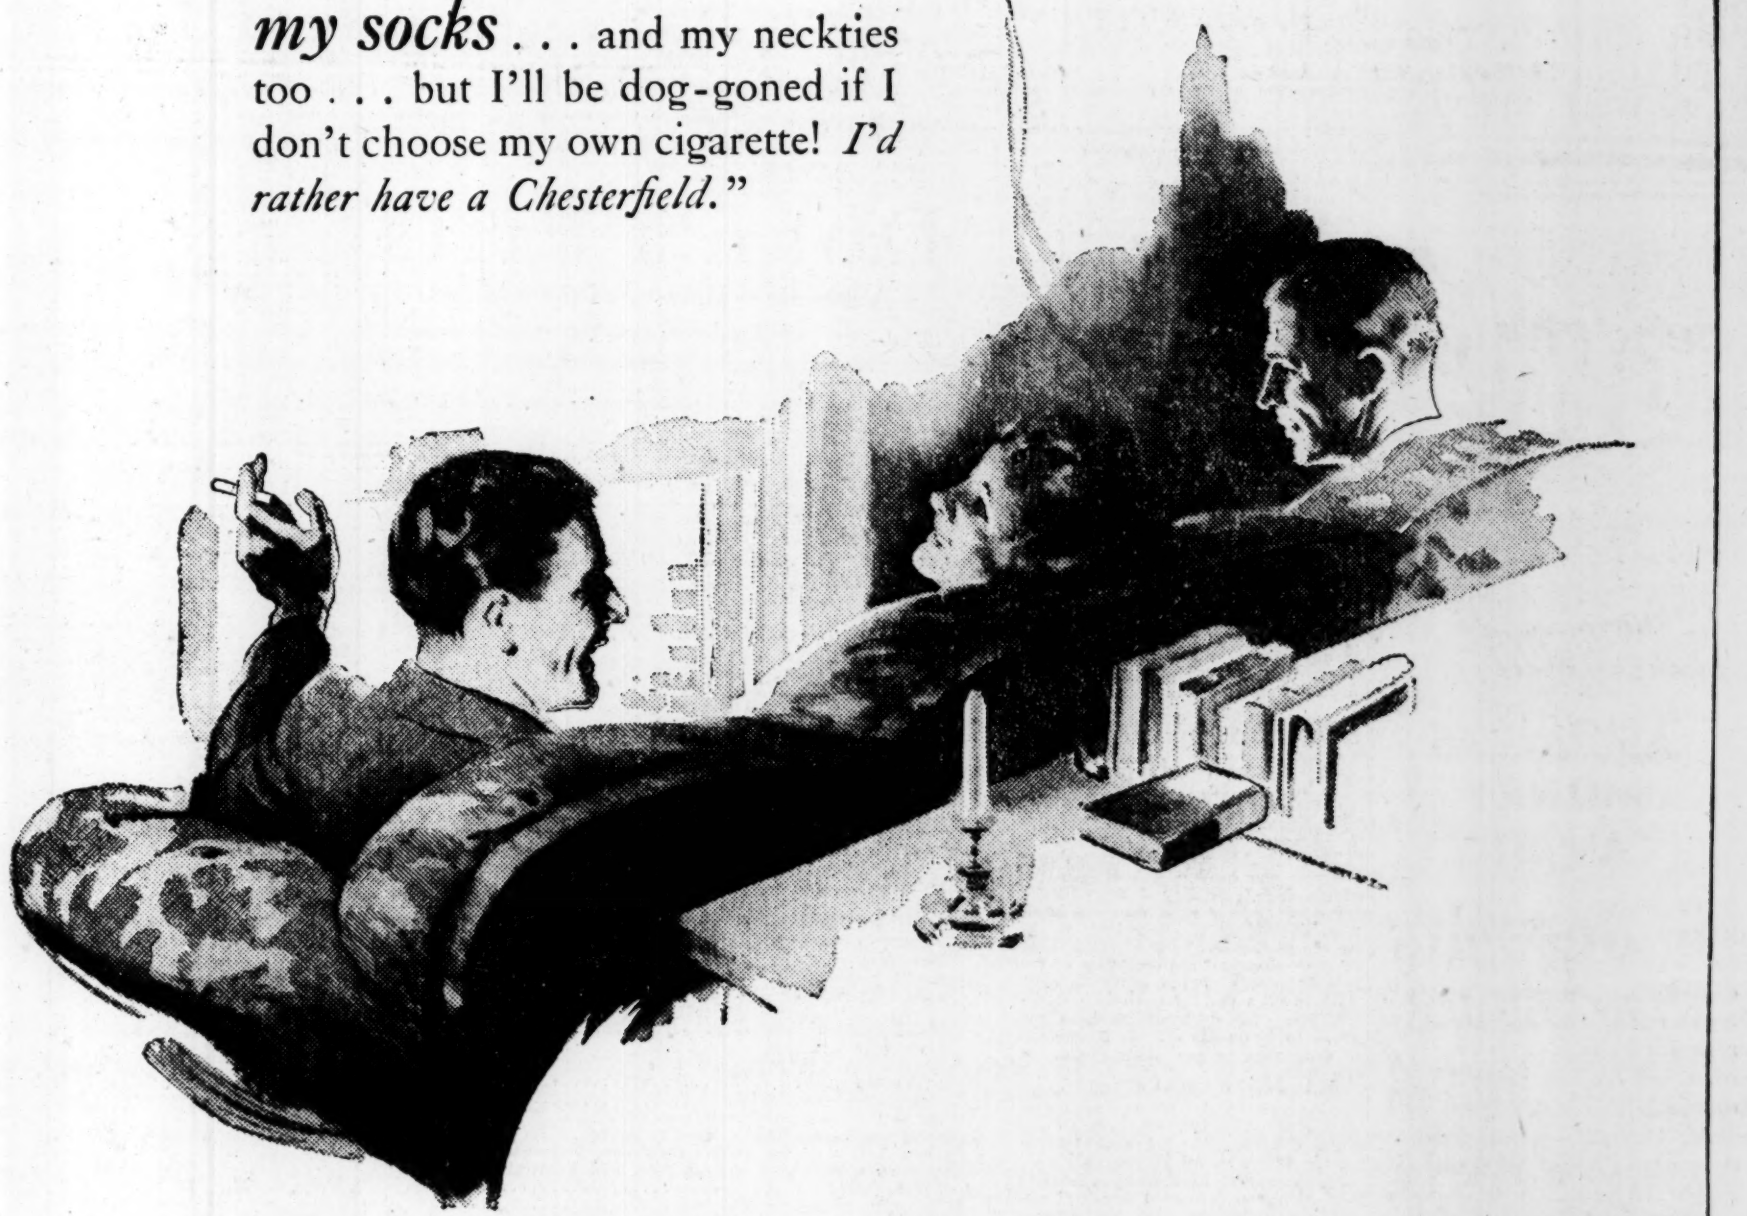

Fifteen Years of Success The reliability of Thomas' treatment is indicated by its fifteen years of success. However, it embodies all modern therapeutic agents of known value in treating hair and scalp disorders. Last year approximately 10,000 men and women throughout the country decided to retain or regain their hair by this proved method.

Examination Without Charge At any of the Thomas' offices the trichologist in charge will gladly examine your hair and scalp without charge and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do in your particular case.

Baldness is a Painless Evil When your hair begins to recede at the temples, frontal, or get thin on the crown, nature is plainly warning you that you have been neglecting your scalp and baldness is surely approaching. Heed this positive warning by having The Thomas' correct the scalp disorder that is causing your loss of hair.

HOOVER'S BIG TASK NOT YET COMPLETED

Official Family Not Fully Selected; Diplomatic Posts To Be Filled.

Washington, February 24.—(AP)—President-elect Hoover entered upon the last week before his inauguration today with several of the major tasks in connection with his assumption of office not yet completed.

Final selection of all his cabinet officers, it is understood, has not yet been made by him, and likewise the major positions have not been finally assigned.

Also, he has not received word from congressional leaders as to the earliest date upon which the special session of congress can be conveniently and usefully called. His inaugural speech yet needs revision and correction.

Well before the end of the week, however, Mr. Hoover proposes, it is reported, to make up his mind finally upon all points yet requiring decision. To this end he will continue his conferences and consultations during this week not only with political leaders, but with close personal friends who, it is understood, were charged by him with making surveys to determine the availability for high administration positions of certain persons recommended to the president-elect.

Uncertain Spots.

Mr. Hoover's greatest uncertainty regarding cabinet positions is reported to center about the attorney general and the secretaries of labor and agriculture. Senator Borah of Idaho, to whom the first post was offered, declined the position only last week on the ground that he felt he could best serve his party and the country by remaining in the senate. The president-elect is now seeking for the post, it is understood, another person who, like the Idaho senator, should be a constitutional lawyer and an eminent lawyer.

The secretaryship of agriculture was discussed by Mr. Hoover not later than yesterday with Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, who came out of the conference declaring that he was under the impression that the president-elect had not yet made any choice in the matter. Mr. Hoover is known to be very anxious to appoint a man who would not only enjoy the full confidence of the farmers but who would also be able to direct efficiently and enthusiastically the farm relief policy which the new president intends to initiate in accordance with his campaign pledges.

Labor Secretaryship.

The labor secretaryship has been under close scrutiny by Mr. Hoover himself and by trusted friends whom the president-elect has charged with inquiry into possible appointees to the post.

Mr. Hoover has lately been devoting his spare moments to the final drafting of his inaugural address. Nothing but revision of the final draft remains to be done and it is expected at his headquarters that the finished text will be sent to the printer in the course of the next couple of days.

Expecting a strenuous time next week, Mr. Hoover spent a quiet Sunday today. In the morning accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and by his son, Herbert, Jr., he attended the Irving Street Friends Meeting House. He returned to have only Representative Fort of New Jersey, secretary to the national republican committee, as a luncheon guest.

His old friend, Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, who has been mentioned as a very likely cabinet possibility, was his only caller in the course of the day. For dinner, Mr. Hoover and Mrs. Robinson had been invited. Dr. Kellogg, now director of the National Academy of Sciences, has been a friend of the president-elect since his student days at Harvard university, and subsequently was one of Mr. Hoover's most trusted lieutenants in Belgium at the time of the relief expedition.

STEAMSHIP MAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., February 24.—(AP)—Failure of an automobile driver to obey a "stop" signal pointed out by a street intersection was believed by police today to be responsible for the death of T. C. Dawson, chief engineer of the Clyde line steamer, Dawson's address was given by police as Birmingham, Ala., and his age was approximately 33 years.

Dawson, according to the version of an eyewitness to the collision, was driving a coupe on a street which had the right of way, when he was struck by another coupe driven by Alfred B. Smith, 59, Wilmington, Mass., and a winter resident of Miami. Dawson's car was thrown from its course and struck a telephone pole in such a way that the door was knocked off. Dawson, believed to have been stunned, fell from the car, his head striking a concrete curb. His car continued for approximately 125 feet before stopping against a tree.

Smith told police that he had slowed down for the intersection, but was not stopped, and that he was progressing at about 15 miles an hour when his car struck that of Dawson. His story was verified by the eyewitness, who said that Dawson's car was proceeding at a rapid rate.

Smith was held by police pending an inquest scheduled for tomorrow.

Note: Officials of the Interstate Airlines, Inc., operators of the Atlanta-Chicago route, and the Gulf Airlines, Inc., operators of the Atlanta-New Orleans route, have directed that the planes to arrive and depart from Candler field on Sunday.

Sunday's passably good weather brought a crowd of between 2,500 and 3,000 persons to Candler field to witness the annual maneuvers of the local air fleet. After an afternoon devoted to the usual passenger-carrying flights, interspersed with a few stunts, a feature attraction took the spotlight.

Jesse Exum, local parachute jumper, provided this by making a perfect jump from the height of about 2,500 from an Eaglehawk plane piloted by A. H. Comer. Exum hit almost exactly in the center of the field and struck without losing his feet.

The local jumper explained that the winds at the higher altitudes again kept him from a try at breaking the southern record of 5,500 feet now held by the late Jack McElvench. He explained that the chance of making the record is not worth the risk and discomfort of having a high wind carry him a mile or more from the field and land him in a tree or some other equally embarrassing spot.

There was, however, one unusual feature about the jump made by Exum because for the first time since he has been jumping the local daredevil consented to take a passenger along with him as he made the jump. He picked for this passenger, Miss Gladys Humphrey, of 1078 Hampton street.

It was Miss Humphrey's first flight as well as her first close-up of a parachute jump from the starting end. There was, when both jumper and spectator had returned to earth, some controversy as to whether the fair passenger had actually witnessed the jump or not, but it was perfectly apparent that she was really thrilled.

Jesse maintained that his pretty passenger did not witness his perilous trip out on the wing or his leap into the air, because she sat with her eyes closed. Miss Humphrey, however, indignantly denied this and claimed that she saw the whole affair. She later admitted this slightly by saying that

ALASKAN VESSEL GOES ON ROCKS AT PUGET SOUND

Seattle, Wash., February 24.—(AP)—Speeding to the rescue of the fast-listing steamship Aleutian, which went aground on Seymour narrows last night, the Alameda, a sister ship, put out from here late today to rescue 198 passengers from the crippled craft.

The Aleutian ran aground on Maude island, at the entrance to Seymour narrows, where another steamship, the Northwest, was badly damaged a year ago in the swirling tides and dense fog.

The Aleutian sent out an SOS but 15 minutes later worked herself loose and proceeded back toward Seattle. Before she was half way here, she began to list, and to calm fears of the passengers, she was anchored off Waldron island, near Bellingham in Puget sound, to await the arrival of the Alameda.

The Alameda will convey the Aleutian back to Seattle, where the heavy freight cargo will be transferred. The relief ship is to sail for southeastern Alaska at 9 o'clock tomorrow night, three days late. The Aleutian will be drydocked for a survey of her damage.

Send them to school with VAPEX

Children love the pleasant odor... Every breath helps shake the cold

AMERICAN mothers know about Vapex. A drop on the children's handkerchiefs as they start for school—the strength of that one application will last all day. A drop on both ends of their pillows at night—it will fight the cold as they sleep. Vapex is pleasant to use. It is simple. It can be used frequently, anywhere. And it will stop a cold at the start. Many have formed the excellent habit of putting a drop of Vapex on a folded handkerchief every morning. Its frequent use will help ward off infection.

Vapex was discovered during the wartime influenza epidemic in England. The immunity to the disease of a few laboratory workers was traced to certain chemicals with which they were working. Tests revealed that these materials gave off a vapor that actually killed the germs of common colds. The discovery was startling and the new product, Vapex, came into immediate use. Today Vapex is widely accepted as the modern way to treat a cold.

Breathe your cold away with Vapex. Buy a bottle from your druggist—50 treatments in every dollar bottle.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

DANNY TRAVELS UNDERGROUND

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Who, knowing little, would know more.
Cannot do better than explore.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse are little people who very soon make themselves at home anywhere. They are particular, but not fussy. So, moving to a strange place does not upset them at all. It is a very short time they are quite at home. It was so when they moved over to the Old Orchard. It was just their good fortune that almost at once they found a hole under the roots of an apple tree. It was just the place for a Meadow Mouse home.

It didn't take them a great while to gather enough grass to make a fairly good nest. They had to gather it under the snow, but it was there and they got it. Then Danny was ready to go exploring. First, he worked around the foot of that tree. Presently he discovered another hole between the roots. Down he popped. This hole went down deeper than the one where they had built their nest. Danny soon found that the frost had not frozen the ground much, if any. That was because there had been a heavy fall of snow before bitter cold weather and the snow had acted as a blanket. He could dig in that earth down there. There was a place where the earth was particularly soft. It was as if some one had been there before him.

"I think I'll dig in here a little way," said Danny to himself. "I might find something."
So Danny dug and almost at once he broke through into a tunnel. He used that funny little nose of his. He heard nothing and he smelled nothing.

"It's one of the tunnels of Miner the Mole," said Danny to himself, "but it's an old tunnel. He hasn't been using it for a long time. No, sir, Miner hasn't up this tunnel for a long time. I can't smell him at all. I'll explore a little."

So Danny started along Miner's tunnel. Miner being bigger than Danny, that tunnel, of course, gave him plenty of room. In fact, he could twist around and run back if he had to. He would go a foot or two and then stop to listen. He could hear nothing. It was just as still as still could be in there underground. Then Danny went on ahead again. It was fun, you see, Danny doesn't mind the dark as some little boys and girls do. He didn't in the least mind being in a strange place in the dark. There was a sense of adventure that he liked. By and by he came to where a tunnel branched off. He stopped there and listened. Still he heard nothing.

"Now which way shall I go?" thought Danny. "Shall I try this branch tunnel, or shall I keep on in the one I'm in? I think I'll keep on in the one I'm in. When I come back, I can try the other one. I wonder where Miner is, anyway? I suppose he's gone to sleep for the winter. It would be fun to find his bedroom and see him asleep. I don't believe any one has seen Miner asleep. But I've never seen him in the winter, so it must be that he does sleep all winter. I wouldn't want to meet him down here, but there isn't the least bit of danger that I will."

So Danny went on. He went on quite a long distance, for the tunnels of Miner the Mole usually are long tunnels. Danny kept on, determined to find the end of that tunnel. By and by he came to a place where Miner had raised a little mound. Miner had pushed the earth out. Danny tried digging. The earth wasn't frozen. In a few moments his head popped out into the snow. Danny climbed out and dug a place around that hole. "This might be very handy by and by. There's nothing like having a handy retreat in time of danger," said Danny. "I'll just make some tunnels of my own through the snow."

"For goodness sake!" exclaimed Nanny Meadow Mouse. "Where have you been?"

"I was just making a tunnel of my own through the snow," said Danny. "I'll just make some tunnels of my own through the snow."

"For goodness sake!" exclaimed Nanny Meadow Mouse. "Where have you been?"

Danny chuckled. "Exploring," said he.

WEST VIRGINIA POLICE HERE ON CONVICT HUNT

Reward of $1,000 for four fugitive convicts from Charleston, W. Va., who are suspected by local police in connection with the robbery last Thursday of the Citizens and Southern Tenth street branch, was offered Sunday by Charleston officials in a wire to police here.

These four men are thought to have been operating in Macon where early Sunday morning they participated in a small holdup there. Macon, Atlanta and Charleston police are pushing every search for the quartet.

The four men who escaped from the Charleston county jail were Adron Bias, Dana Bias, Julian Lieble and W. R. Proctor.

Two state troopers from West Virginia and a city detective from Charleston arrived in Atlanta Sunday searching for the four. They found a small car similar to the one used by the men in their escape, at Marietta, where another car had been stolen.

They advanced the theory that the men had stolen a larger car and left the old, small car, although they could not explain how or why they were able to rob the Macon store shortly after midnight Sunday morning and come to Marietta later.

BOULEVARD PLANS FOR LEE STREET NOW COMPLETED

Completed blueprints of the proposed 80-foot boulevard from the intersection of Peters Park and Whitehall streets to the city limits off Lee street have been received at the office of W. W. Matthews, secretary of the South Fulton Civic federation. The maps provide a roadway of 70 feet with five-foot sidewalks, and were prepared under the personal supervision of Clark Donaldson, Atlanta chief of construction.

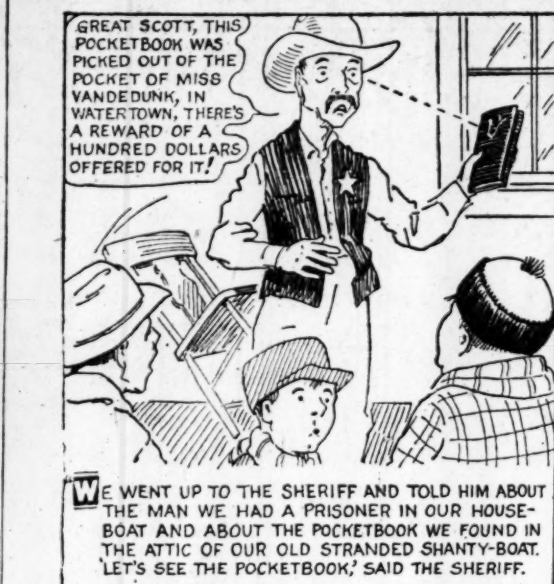

"A request for the county portion of this survey will be made Monday," stated Mr. Matthews, "and if we can get anything like the cooperation from the county engineer that we had from Mr. Donaldson, every body in south Fulton will be satisfied. The city's part of this survey was made within ten days after the Lee boulevard committee organized."

Establishment of a dividend rate on 1,000,000 shares of Coca-Cola common stock will feature the annual directors and stockholders' meeting of the company to be held in the Coca-Cola building on Plum street today.

The first directors' meeting will be held at 10 o'clock this morning. The stockholders' meeting will be held at 11 o'clock and the second directors' meeting will be held at the close of the stockholders' meeting.

Previously, the common stock has paid $6 per annum, but recent issuance of the one million shares of class "A" stock, non-voting and callable at $52.50 per share, with an annual dividend of $3 per share, may reduce the dividend of the regular issue.

It is expected that the common stock will be placed either on a $3 or $4 per share dividend, and that the company, as its earnings permit, gradually will retire the issue of class "A" stock, now being sold on the New York stock exchange at prices ranging from $49 to $50.

It is understood that the company plans to recall one-fifth of the issue or $10,000,000 at the current price of $50 per share. When the stock was issued, the company agreed to repurchase 20 per cent of any shareholder's stock.

WHY TRY TO HIDE PIMPLES AND RASHES?

Why try to cover up unsightly pimples, rashes and other embarrassing skin blemishes when it is possible to get rid of them completely?

The sensible and easy way to have a clear, healthy skin is to go to your druggist, ask for Black and White Ointment and use it according to directions. It is pleasant to use, highly beneficial and scientifically safe.

Smart Frock For General Wear

Butterick Pattern 2444

This frock offers a splendid opportunity to take full advantage of the bordered silks that are so smart this spring, to use ribbon of a harmonizing color on printed silks, or crepe. Its lines are extremely smart and practical, and it is admirably adapted to street and afternoon wear.

Certain designs in Paysanne prints suggest themselves as suitable for use in this frock. The striped materials that will be so popular this spring could be used effectively, horizontally in the skirt and up and down in the blouse.

Size 36 in this pattern requires 4 yards of 36-inch material and 4 yards of 36-inch contrasting material.

This Butterick Pattern with complete instructions for making is 45c. You may order by phone or mail. Address Home Dressmaking Bureau, Davison-Paxon Co., Atlanta, Ga. For phone orders, call IVy 5700.

THE SIXTH SENSE

A Craig Kennedy Mystery Story.

BY ARTHUR B. REEVE.

INSTALLMENT II.

It was not so long before Deering rejoined us. "I wouldn't be surprised, Cunningham, if you were right. I've looked in every closet and wardrobe I could find in the house. I haven't found Rudyard's hunting coat, not a trace of it. He was wearing it in that picture of him we ran into today."

For the moment Kennedy seemed interested in Deering, scrutinizing him carefully, then seemed absorbed in his own thoughts. I was a trifle disappointed. I had expected Craig to jump into the thing, make the fur fly, clean it up with a rush.

"He might have stuck it in a chest or box," I observed. Deering shook his head. "I'm afraid you're wrong, old man. Some one else has opened all the boxes, pulled everything out. There's nothing hidden. There's no hunting coat—and there's only a week or so left of the duck season in this state."

"That's reasonable," I nodded. "I hadn't been duck hunting this season. No sportsman like Rudyard is going to pass that up for the year. Very likely, he took his coat and went gunning."

It was more than George Rule of the Press could stand. "Yes, but not out to Montauk Point, and not necessarily ducks. Somebody up in the Adirondacks is equally sure he is up there. We've started a man out from Plattsburg on a rumor."

Now that the thing had broken, Davenport of the Express seemed to feel as if a ban were lifted. "Well, he isn't everywhere. We just had a report that he was seen with a party down on Barnegat bay. It's not likely all these rumors are correct. They can't be. One is just as likely as another. Shall we make a book on it?"

The third rumor seemed to take the thrill out of the absence of the hunting coat. Nor was there any thrill in laying a bet.

"What a house old Rudyard had!" exclaimed the little chap from the Sun, looking about, by way of changing the subject. "I can't imagine why anyone would leave such a place. Can you, Walter?"

"No; I'd like to go through the house. What do you have to do to get permission?"

"Take it," replied Deering. "Same as I did. We don't do any more to it than the heirs must have done some time before we arrived. Everything has been pulled out, in the greatest confusion."

"I'll go with you, Jameson," Cunningham spoke up.

"All right," I agreed. "Let's go!" Kennedy did not even get up to look about him. I knew some of the men were disappointed, too, to say the least, at his inactivity. He seemed to care nothing about their critical looks, was absorbed only in his thoughts, as if piecing things together. I felt that I would have liked him to accompany me. But he did not offer to go and I did not suggest it.

Cunningham and I went first to the kitchen and pantry. There seemed to be nothing in them, or in the dining room, only the evidence of a cleaning up, a lick and a promise, by Mary, the cook.

Down cellar we went next, gingerly and expectantly. But we were here also doomed to disappointment. We could find no traces of the man. Only, we discovered his wine cellar was empty.

All over the cellar we searched. I looked even into the furnace. The cold room and the storage room had neither the man nor a clue to where he had gone.

From the cellar we mounted up into the attic, with the idea of working down thence to the library again. Such an attic! Everything was there, from a quaintly interesting storeroom built out under the eaves to a huge unfinished portion that would have been the delight of any small child. I could even make out the aged wasps nests in the crevices between the beams. There was a ceiling over one large end, leaving a space between it and the ridge of the roof, which served a purpose of making the house warmer in winter and cooler in summer. This was reached by a ladder and a locked scuttle door.

From the attic down we searched each successive floor. It was a beautiful home, but, as I passed through, it seemed as if there were a desolate touch in it. Something seemed missing.

As I entered the library again and observed the many rows of books, I could not help thinking that Reginald Rudyard was something more than a sportsman. He was a bibliophile. When the geese and ducks, pheasant and partridge, even big game were not in season were beckoning.

I thought I would write up a brief description of the library and this little-known side of the missing man. It would make a good human-interest story for the Star.

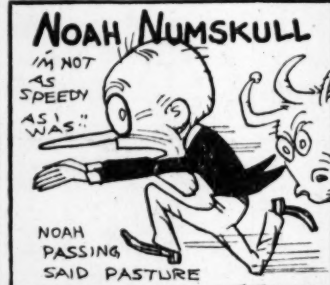

I had been making notes for some minutes at a beautiful old Spanish table used as a desk. Under it was a quaint paper basket made of some highly polished metal, a relic of the past when things of beautiful must be ornate.

A draught of wind, and my paper scattered. I leaned over to recover the sheets. In the basket I noticed an old blotter. I couldn't fish it out fast enough.

My enthusiasm got the better of me. "Look, Craig! This was in the basket. Perhaps there's some clue!"

I held up the blotter with its writing and figures and lines all blurred into each other as in any over-worked blotter. Much of it seemed to be in red ink.

"A population of 10,000 by 1932" is Atlanta's goal. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Large Machine Shop Here Equipped for Good Work

Atlanta is favored in having many large and small machine shops in and around the city equipped and manned to turn out large machine jobs weighing several tons, or little pieces that would almost be small enough to fill a cavity in a tooth.

One of the most modernly equipped machine shops in this part of the country is that of the Davidson-Kennedy company, located at 1030 Jefferson street N. W. It is especially prepared to handle heavy machine work. Among the jobs recently turned out by this shop was a large spur gear six feet in diameter, with eight-inch face and six-inch bore, which was done on the 24-inch boring mill.

Equipment coupled with skill means everything in a modern machine shop, and in this respect this firm has the best and latest in equipment and a fine organization of skilled mechanics under competent supervision. Backed up by practical mechanical engineers, they can handle any large or small machine with dispatch and with all the precision the most exacting job requires.

All the heavy work is economically handled by overhead cranes, which run the entire length of the shop. These cranes are arranged for handling materials either from railroad cars on the spur track which runs

Denver, Colo., February 24.—(United Press)—Farice King, the woman scorned, will go to trial Monday for killing her former sweetheart, Patrolman Robert K. Evans.

The state asks life imprisonment on the charge that she premeditated the slaying of her betrayer, and executed it calmly on the morning of last November 28, in the hospital where she was nursing. Evans had been taken to the hospital suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by a bandit.

Machine Shop Proprietor Celebrates Anniversary

George Washington's birthday last Friday was also an epochal date in the life of Marion L. Roberts, for it was on February 22, twenty-two years ago that he founded the Triangle Machine shops at 1003 Lee and Donnelly streets.

Mr. Roberts held open house all day Friday and received congratulations of the large number of friends who called on him during the day. After showing his visitors through his interesting and compact machine shop, he told of how he came into the machine shop business, and why he named his shop the Triangle Machine shop.

Florida Bandit Says Hold-Up Shooting Was Accidental

West Palm Beach, Fla., February 24.—(AP)—The shooting of Horace M. Wells, wealthy automobile dealer of Southampton, L. I., during a holdup of a dinner party last night was accidental, said the bandit's officers today.

Southworth was captured by the police at Stuart, two hours after the robbery and was brought to the county jail here today. The prisoner declared his gun was accidentally discharged when Wells grappled with him.

The bandit's gun was in his coat pocket when the shooting occurred, the steel-jacketed bullet passing through Wells' body.

The automobile dealer is in a serious, though not critical condition at a local hospital.

Southworth, who admits he has more than a dozen officers there, was attempting to escape from Miami, where he had operated for several weeks, when he held up the dinner party at the home of Vincent S. Hall, in a fashionable south side district last night.

He also said he "broke up a petting party" at Miami early Saturday night and stole a roadster which he drove to West Palm Beach.

He abandoned the car on a sandy road while entering the city by a circuitous route, when he ran into a heavy bed of sand.

He set out on foot in "search of transportation."

According to bystanders, Mr. Rylee was entirely innocent of any wrong intentions toward Hamilton, who began calling Mr. Rylee alleged villain names, he told him that he was his friend and not to call him that any more, and when he repeated it several times Mr. Rylee knocked him down and before Mr. Hamilton arose from the sidewalk, he pulled his gun and shot Rylee through the stomach.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 43

After Tarzan left the tribe of apes it was torn by continual strife and confusion. Terkoz, now their king, proved a cruel and capricious leader. In desperation the apes decided to turn him out. So one day as he returned to the tribe five huge, hairy beasts sprang upon him.

At heart Terkoz was a coward. So he did not remain to fight and die. Tearing himself away, he fled, foaming with rage and hatred, into the jungle. Several days he wandered aimlessly. Swinging from tree to tree, this horrible man-like beast came suddenly upon the two women.

He was right above when Jane saw him. His awful face thrust within a foot of her. One piercing scream escaped her ere the brute had clutched her arm. Then another mood seized him. He leaped into the trees, bearing Jane to a fate a thousand times worse than death.

Jane did not once lose consciousness as she was borne farther into the impenetrable jungle. The scream that brought Clayton stumbling through the underbrush had led Tarzan of the Apes straight to where lay the fainting Esmeralda. His ape training told him plainly the whole story. He instantly gave chase.

On he sped in the track of Terkoz and his prey. Terkoz heard and was spurred to greater effort. Three miles were covered before Tarzan overtook them. Seeing flight was futile, Terkoz dropped groundward. Tarzan bounded like a leopard into the open glade. Terkoz turned to fight for his prize.

MELLON CONTROL
DRAWS APPLAUSE

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, February 24.—When Andrew W. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, was made secretary of the treasury eight years ago, the verdict of Wall Street was that whatever might happen in the rest of the Harding cabinet, the country was in rare luck in the selection of its financial head. Mellon being widely recognized as one of the country's ablest bankers and business men.

Mellon took office while general trade and the stock and money markets of the world were in the throes of post-war deflation. Refunding of national and international war debts was immediately ahead.

Since Mellon took office, with the exception of France, foreign countries have funded the $10,000,000,000 borrowed from our government during the war.

At the peak, which was on August 1, 1919, our own government war debt stood at $26,348,778,000. The latest available figures of the present outstanding government debt are those for November 30, 1925. The total was then $17,102,000,000. This means that our own government war debt has been reduced by no less than $9,246,778,000 or considerably more than one-third.

For what has been done in the gigantic task of refunding war debts, Wall Street takes off its hat to Mellon; but not with the same unstinting, spontaneous enthusiasm previously witnessed. This change is due to doubt as to whether both business men borrowing money and the stock market have not been influenced too much by Mellon's war debt refunding policy; whether even Mellon himself has correctly judged the money market.

It was in June of 1921 that the stock market hit bottom in its violent post-war deflation. From June, 1921, on money began to get comparatively easy as frozen loans were thawed and the federal reserve began for the first time to operate under something like normal peace time conditions. It was then up to Secretary Mellon to decide whether the maturing government funded and floating debt would be refunded through the sale of new short or long term securities. Mr. Mellon made no secret of his decision to favor short term securities. Money was increasingly becoming more abundant with declining open market rates. There was a good market especially for the banks for short term government paper. Secretary Mellon increasingly issued short term paper at lower interest rates.

WEEKLY REPORT ON COTTON MARKET

New Orleans, February 24.—(AP)

Although the price range has been of the narrowest the past week trading has been fairly active. This has been due to the fact that the holiday at the end of the week followed by the March notice day on Saturday discouraged entering on new commitments whereas liquidation of the March interest led to a good deal of business without much change in prices. On some days the extreme spread of prices was scarcely five points.

A good part of the March interest was liquidated by transferring from that month to later positions. On the other hand a good portion of the contracts were absorbed by spot interest intending to receive actual delivery of the cotton. It was reported that Japanese interests were particularly interested in this maneuver owing to the desire to receive on contracts 4-8 inch cotton of which the certified stock largely consists.

The general impression was that there would be rather liberal tenders on March contracts and this conviction was confirmed by the issue of notices on Saturday, the first March notice day in the local market, for the delivery of 15,000 bales all of which were, it was claimed, promptly cared for by spot interest.

The first notice day in New York was Tuesday. Aside from the March liquidation the market was more or less supported by the unfavorable weather in the belt which it was feared has further delayed preparations for the crop.

Mr. Arde Bulova, Vice President of the Company, has summarized from his letter to us as follows:

"Bulova Watch Company, Inc., together with its subsidiaries, all wholly owned, is one of the world's largest manufacturers of strap and wrist watches with jeweled movements. Bulova pocket watches, which have been recently introduced, and the newly designed line of desk and boudoir clocks, have met with favorable reception in the trade.

The Company has financed its growth mainly through reinvestment of earnings, and with the additional working capital from this financing will be able to take greater advantage of developments in its business. The active management will continue in the hands of the Bulova family and associates, who will own over 70% of the Common Stock presently to be outstanding.

Volume production and the piece-work basis of employment for an average of some 2,000 operatives in the plants, at New York and Providence in this country and at Biemme in Switzerland, reduce unit costs and ensure quality of product.

Bulova watches are sold only under the Company's own trade-names and distributed exclusively through the retail jewelry trade. More than 5,000 jewelers throughout the United States and Canada sell Bulova products and carry parts for prompt repair service. Distributors' retail merchandising is aided by a trained sales organization and aggressive national advertising of products standard in quality over a wide range of prices. Sales have increased continuously each year since 1916 and to date this year are over 30% larger than for the same period in 1925.

The Preferred Stock will be issued to increase net working capital and for other corporate purposes. The consolidated balance sheet as at December 31, 1925, giving effect to this financing, shows net current assets of $4,983,505 with a current ratio of better than 5 to 1 and net tangible assets exceeding $100 per share of Preferred Stock presently to be outstanding.

Consolidated net earnings for the three years ended December 31, 1925, plus adjustments in the average annual amount of $57,009, of which $19,000 are non-recurring expenses and the balance represents interest to be eliminated by this financing, officers' salaries in excess of contracts for 1929 and adjustment of Federal income taxes to the present rate of 12%, as certified by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, have been as follows:

	$291,066	$696,784	$1,201,004

Such net earnings for 1928, applied to the capitalization presently to be outstanding, exceed 6.8 times annual Preferred dividend and the balance is $3.73 per share of Common Stock."

We offer these Preferred Shares, when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of Counsel, Messrs. Kellogg, Emery & Inness-Brown for the Bankers and Messrs. Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood for the Company. It is expected that delivery in the form of temporary certificates will be made about March 5, 1929.
